

Tackling Alcohol – Related Deaths

Alcohol consumption, while a common practice worldwide, can lead to serious health consequences when done excessively. In the UK, alcohol-related deaths have been a matter of concern, impacting families, communities and placing strain on the national healthcare system.

As a Data Analyst with the NHS, your primary objective is to gain insights from the data can guide public health strategies, inform policy-making and drive awareness campaigns.

Key insights to consider

1. How can the trend of alcohol-related deaths changed over the years?
2. Are there specific regions in the UK that witness a higher number of alcohol-related deaths?
3. Which gender is more prone to alcohol-related deaths and why might this be the case?
4. What are the leading causes of alcohol-related deaths? Are there specific conditions or diseases that are predominant?
5. At what age are individuals most at risk of dying due to alcohol consumption? How can interventions be tailored for different age groups?